

Why Lowell?

Lowell is just 25 miles from Boston, a world-class city filled with some of the world's best educational, medical and financial institutions set in a wonderfully historic setting.

Lowell, like the University, is a warm and welcoming place. It's the birthplace of the Industrial Revolution. It's the hometown of Beat poet Jack Kerouac and boasts one of the nation's largest urban national parks. It's a cultural hub where ethnic communities share their languages, art and cuisines. The renaissance that's ongoing in Lowell is the gold standard that other communities strive to replicate. Lowell is also a small and diverse city that provides meaningful opportunities for the University population to engage as citizens and through outreach and services. From the banks of the Merrimack River, beaches and mountains are not far away.

The Times of London named our university one of the best in the world, calling us "truly world class."
