Join Our Research Data Management Workshop

---

25 March 2025

How should you manage your research data, create an effective data management plan, and share your data in line with FAIR principles? Learn all this and more at our Research Data Management workshop.

Date: 2 April 2025, 14:00–16:00

Format: In-person + online, in English

Location: Hybernská Campus A3 + online

Lecturers: Mgr. Dagmar Hanzlíková, Ing. Milan Janíček (Open Science Support Centre, Central Library of Charles University)

Participants will learn how to:

- efficiently manage research data,
- create a data management plan (DMP),
- ensure the reusability of their research outputs,
- share data responsibly according to the principle “as open as possible, as closed as necessary.”

This workshop is designed for anyone working with research data who wants to learn more about managing them in accordance with modern standards.

Registration is available via the Charles University Education Portal.

The Research Data Management workshop is part of the spring training series for early-career researchers at Charles University. A total of 10 specialized workshops are offered, based on the European Competence Framework for Researchers. The workshops are designed for postdoctoral researchers and research assistants across disciplines, with some also open to Ph.D. students. They are conducted in English and open to all interested participants, not just international colleagues.

You can find an overview of all workshops on the Postdoctoral Hub website .
